BIG THREE TO SETTLE JAP-AMERICAN CONTROVERSY

CRIMINAL COURT HEARS LIQUOR FATALITY EVIDENCE

NAVAL EXPERTS REFER CONTROVERSY TO BIG THREE OF ARMS CONFERENCE

Deadlock Between U. S. And Japan Virtually Broken By Today's Decision—Hughes, Kato And Balfour Have Task Of Reaching An Agreement On Capital Ship Ratio.

DISCUSS ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE

Washington, D. C., November 30.—Naval experts of the United States, Japan and Great Britain at a meeting today, decided to refer back to the principal delegates the question of capital ship ratio controversy between this country and Japan.

This, in effect, breaks the deadlock between the United States and Japan and places the task of reaching an agreement in the hands of Secretary Hughes, Sir Arthur Balfour and Admiral Baron Kato, the leading delegates of the three countries.

Big Three Discuss Alliance

Washington, D. C., Nov 30.—The "Big Three" of the Arms Conference —Hughes, Balfour and Kato—are now discussing the disposition of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

This military compact, considered a menace by the United States, has forced itself into the controversy between this country and Japan over the extent to which Nippon's capital ship tonnage is to be cut. An agreement or understanding among these three powers has been suggested as a substitute for the Alliance.

Question For Big Three

The battleship controversy' came before the naval experts again today with every indication that it can be settled only by the Big Three, or by the conference itself.

From British sources it was learned that Lloyd George, when he arrived for the conference, hopes to induce America to aid in averting what he believes will be a second economic catastrophe in Europe.

In the senate an opinion was expressed that President arding's plan to enter into an agreement with foreign powers instead of formal treaties, would bring strong opposition, many of the senators believing they are being deprived of their participation in foreign affairs.

Sky Marriage by Signal

Henry Toncray, Shreveport, La., and Miss Marie Blanchard, 18, Oakdale, La., niece of Newton C. Blanchard, former governor and senator of Louisiana, were married 5000 feet above New Orleans. Witnesses followed in another airplane. When the groom said "yes" a white signal was flashed. When the bride accepted she a blue one and when Rev. Philip Deschner pronounced them man and wife a red one. The planes then landed and the witnesses signed the papers.

POLICE MYSTIFIED BY WOMAN'S MURDER

Body Of Young Woman Found Locked In Hotel Room In Toledo—No Clues To Slayer Are Found

Toledo, O., Nov. 30.—The body of a young woman, her face swollen and bruised, was found locked in a room in a down town hotel here early today. She had been strangeld to death

The assailant stole the cash register and resorted to other carefully planned means to conceal his identity and all clues to the murder mystery. The woman and a man registered as husband and wife, entered the hotel Tuesday night and were assigned a room.

During the night John Martin, of Louisville, Ky., a guest at the hotel was aroused by the moans and cries of a woman and in the corridor met a man walking up and down who volunteered the information that his wife was ill.

BAD CHECK GAME NETS HAVERLOCK JAIL SENTENCE

Irvona Man Finds "No Funds" Game Unprofitable One To Practice In Clearfield County.

The old game of feeding your creditor on a "check in fall" when you have no funds in the bank to meet it and the transaction results in the aforesaid cerditor paying protest fee on the worthless check is not going to be the healthy pastime in Clearfield county that it used to be. At least William Haverlock, of Irvona, is satisfied it isn't. He was convicted of issuing such a check on Monday afternoon and when called for sentence was given a $5.00 fine and costs and two months in the county jail, in addition to making good the $27.20 he owed the Opperman Cigar Co., and to whom he gave the worthless check.

He was paroled from the jail sentence for two months and if at the end of that time the money has been paid the parole may be extended.

This is the first conviction and sentence under the Act of '99 covering such transactions.

44 institutions were listed by Lewis as sectarian and therefore, in that classification under the decision it would beunconstitutional for the state to advance them money. 17 institutions alleged sectarian were not so listed by Lewis and will receive $280,000 from the state.

This is the first conviction under an act of assembly which was only three months old when the killing occurred. It imposes a fine of from $100 to $1,000 imprisonmen from one to five years and revoking o fhunting license from two to ten years.

An effort was made by the defense to quash the indictment on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the act, but the motion was denied.

Gentlemen's Agreement For A Nation's Association Sure To Cause Head-On Clash

Senators View Any Attempt To Foster Unwritten Constitution As Infringement Of Rights

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—A head-on clash between the Senate and President Harding is certain if the executive tries to establish his hoped for Association of Nations on a set of unwritten "gentlemens agreements."

The mere suggestion that the Association might function without a written constitution has outraged those Senate Constitutionalists who are very jealous of the Senate's part in foreign relations. Many Senators of both patries hold that the president has no power to bind the United States to any course in conjunction with foreign powers without Senate assent.

If the compact is of the binding force of a treaty it thereupon becomes a treaty within constructive meaning, the sentors hold, and requires Senate ratification.

CLOVER RUN BOOZE-MAKING ARTIST HEAVILY SOAKED

On Trial Following Capture Of Still, Majalis Massareck Tries To Tell Court Process.

JUDGE EVIDENTLY IS SKEPTICAL

Majalis Massareck, whose place at Clover Run was raided by the Sheriff a couple of months ago and a still captured and a barrel of mash destroyed, entered a plea of guilty to a violation of the liquor law charge and in attempting to square himself by lying out of it when before the Court Tuesday afternoon got himself more of a dose than it was originally intended to give him.

When being questioned about his output, etc., Massareck said he never made more than enough to satisfy his own thirst. Judge Bell then asked the Sheriff what he found at the place and when told of the barrel of mash Massareck was asked what he expected to get out of that barrel of stuff and he said "just one gallon," and when he offered to prove it by "setting" another barrel, the Judge couldn't see his explanation of the ballistics of 32 gallons of working mash and he told Massareck that it would be some time before he would "set" another barrel. He then added "the sentence of the court is that you pay $200 fine and costs and undergo imprisonment in the County jail for a period of three months. Massareck started mumbling something when Judge Bell said "Shut up, if you don't want it added to," and he shut up, by heck.

Soloist Pleases Audience

Miss Mary Mitchell was in exceptionally fine voice and rendered two special numbers during the evening and charmingly responded with pleasing encores after each initial appearance before her auditors would be satisfied to let her go.

The band program consisted of eight separate selections and each was rendered with the spirit and dash which has made such a favorable reputation for Prof. Thayer's Legion Band during the few short months of its existence. The improvement of the band was so noticeable since its last appearance as to excite the most favorable comment and the audience was a unit in saying it was the most enjoyable band concert in the recent history of Clearfield—not excepting the many professional bands which have appeared here.

BLAIN CITY MAN ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Charged With Being Indirectly Responsible For Death During A Drinking Bout.

ILLICIT LIQUOR CAUSES DEATH

Quintet Overcome—4 Of Party Saved, Other Dies, According To Testimony Offered.

Christ Banco, of Blain City was placed on trial in Criminal Court last evening, charged with manslaughter, the allegation being that he was the indirect cause of the death on July 18 last, near Blain City of Wade Harkins, aged 35 years who died as the result of a drinking bout or party.

Banco, according to the evidence introduced at the trial was engaged in the illicit sale of liquor for beverage purposes at his home in Blain City. On July 18th Wade Harkins and Henry Thomaschusky purchased a pint of whiskey from Banco, for which they paid him $4.50. Lloyd Williams and several other residents of the Blain City neighborhood assisted in drinking the pint and after a crowd of seven or eight had gathered it was decided to get some more booze.

Party Drinks Alcohol

Thomaschusky and Williams went to Banco's house and purchased half a gallon of alcohol for which they paid $18. They returned to the party with the fiery stuff and everybody proceeded to drink of it. As a result of their frequent potations and the strength of the stuff, the whole party was soon overcome and when their plight was discovered, physicians were summoned and worked long and valiantly over the unconscious men.

Four are Saved

Thanks to the heroic efforts of the doctors four of five of the worst sufferers were snatched from the brink of a drunkard's grave back to life, but Wade Harkins had imbibed too much of the death-dealing fluid which throttled his heart and he never regained consciousness.

Following Harkin's death District Attorney Arnold was notified and he summoned County Coroner Pollum to make an investigation Sheriff Gorman Corpral Novick and State Troopers Kohn and Conrader assisted in the investigation and the evidence they secured resulted in the arrst of Banco. He was arrested following the verdict of the Coroner's jury and placed in jail. He was later released on bail and summoned for trial this week.

District Attorney Arnold is conducting the prosecution and has worked up a strong case against Banco, who is being ably defended by W. Wallace Smith and A. H. Woodward, Esqs.

BOOSTER FOR HIS HOME TOWN

Bert Hutchings Served as General Chairman for Legion at Kansas City.

"If there is anything going on for the good of Kansas City, Bert Hutchings is usually the motive power behind it."

This is a common remark in Kansas City regarding Albert E. Hutchings, general chairman of the third annual national convention of the American Legion, under whose direction Kansas City entertained the largest assembly of ex-service men and women since the war.

The career of Mr. Hutchings is closely interwoven with the progress of Kansas City, which he visualized in 1900, when he decided to live there. Since then he has organized the Kansas City Advertising club, he has been president of the Rotary club and the Automobile club, and has participated in every movement for the advancement of the city.

During the World war he was given the immense task of organizing the Liberty loan campaigns in the Tenth Federal Reserve district, but civilian service was not enough for him when his country was involved in a war. He organized a Seventh Missouri National Guard company, and served as its captain. Later he was transferred to the motor transport corps of the regular army, serving at Camp Meigs and Camp Merritt, in command of headquarters motor command No. 86.

AFTER THE FAKE PROMOTERS

American Legion on Watch to Detect and Expose Organizations Victimizing Ex-Service Men.

The harpies who prey on public sympathy and the vampires who attach themselves to every legitimate and worthy campaign for the relief of human distress, have been flying in flocks behind the trudging army of job-hunting ex-service men. The police courts are revealing the sordid operations of scores of avaricious persons who have been conducting money-raising campaigns on a get-rich-quick basis on the pretense of assisting unemployed World war veterans. Some of these fly-by-night promoters have formed large organizations, using as dupes veterans who are, themselves, hungry but have been induced by urgent need to grasp at the straw of a job which the swindler dangles before them.

Behind a shield of plausibility, the promoter sends his money solicitors out upon the public. Needless to say, little of the money raised actually is used to assist the unemployed ex-service men. The promoter takes good care to see that his account books, if he keeps any, never record the full amounts which have been extracted from the sympathetic public. And if he makes a pretense of accounting for the way the money is expended, this accounting is only a clever construction of falsities, intended to protect the promoter, if he is made the subject of inquiry by public officials. The system by which he operates precludes honesty.

These swindlers often copy the names and methods of organizations which are legitimate and have reputable sponsors. The names the employment swindlers select for their organizations only too often inspire public confidence because they may easily be confused with those of long-existing public charitable societies. The American Legion is constantly on the watch to detect, expose and prosecute organizations victimizing ex-service men. The public should come to know that any organization ostensibly for the help of unemployed veterans should be regarded suspiciously if it does not have the Legion's indorsement.—American Legion Weekly.

NO WAY TO PREVENT CHEMICAL WARFARE ACCORDING TO WELL KNOWN SCIENTIST

Chemical Possibilities Unmeasured. Nation's Factories Potential War Makers.

By Webb Miller

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Nov. 30.—"The whole question of disarmament has been radically changed and rendered uncertain by the progress in the use of chemicals in warfare."

Such is the opinion of Dr. Albert Rance, an authority on chemicals and a student of the use of chemicals in war.

Dr. Rance points out that at present there is no known method of determining or limiting the ability of a nation to do harm to its neighbors or enemies by means of chemicals or poisonous gas. Even though its warships were scrapped and cannons and ammunition destroyed, a nation can have in its laboratories and chemical factories the means of making a terrible war with liquid fire, poison gas and deadly chemicals distributed by airplanes such as are used in ordinary commercial work.

"The Great War has demonstrated the existance of a vast unknown factor of which the power cannot be measures. How can nations conceive disarmament effectively when one of the important factors is unmeasureable? Nobody can now know the limits of the influence of chemistry and aviation on the future warfare."

Dr. Rance emphasizes the fact that almost any nation where it so willed, could secretly prepare the means for a chemical war in its laboratories in peace time, under the guise of peaceful activities.

As an instance of the speed with which chemical manufacture can be developed, Rance cites the manufacture of the terrible explosive yperite in France. In March 1918, the total production in France was 580 pounds but seven months later the factories were producing over 1,000,000 pounds.

The French scientists believes it is nearly impossible to guard effectively against any nation developing the means of chemical warfare in peace time.

He declares that the chance discovery of some chemist in an obscure University might modify the whole art of warmaking.

LOTS OF RYE, BUT IT'S FOR BREAD

Calgary, Atla, Nov. 30.—United Press.)—Canada's rye harvest this year will be 12,000,000 bushels representing an increase of 500 per cent in five years. This phenomenal increase is due to the government's encouragement of rye growing.

When prohibition began sweeping the American continent some economists foresaw smaller profits in rye production through curtailment of its use in manufacture of alcoholic beverages. But these statisticians failed to reckon the increased and widespread use of rye in Europe. One third of the European population lives on rye bread. It is the principal cereal in Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria and Russia.

With this situation in mind, the government opened a systematic campaign for increased acreage.

Babe Ruth has asked the owners of the Yankees to pay him a $60,000 salary next season. Colonels Huston and Ruppert, owners of the New York Yankees, are said to look favorably on this demand.

The season that just passed earned Ruth a salary of about $30,000. If Ruth is given the $60,000 stipend it will be the biggest salary paid to any man connected with baseball. At present Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, gets $42,500. Ban Johnson, the American League president $30,000. Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb are said to earn $22,000, just one third of what Ruth wants and probably will get in 1922.

A writer in the New York World in speaking of Robert Lincoln, son of the immortal Abraham Lincoln, who is chairman of the Pullman Company, at Chicago, makes the following interesting comment:

"Robert T. Lincoln is the only man in America who witnessed the assassination of the three American Presidents. He was in the theatre at Washington the night his father was shot, because I have a New York Herald of April 16, 1865, which reports that he was in the box behind his father.

"He was in Garfields Cabinet—I think as Secretary of the Interior—and was walking up to meet Garfield at the Union Station when Garfield was fired upon.

"He was in the receiving line at the Buffalo Exposition—about three down the line—when McKinley was shot.'

The judge complimented the woman on her sand and immediately ordered the husband to stay at home, keep the house tidy and look after the children, while the plucky woman took up the burden of keeping the wolf from the door.

District Attorney Arnold it is said is thinking very seriously of indicting the Clearfield County Commissioners on a "moonshining" charge and while we don't agree entirely with the strict legal construction which might make these hardworking officials liable, we must admit there is some grounds for at least charging that the Commissioners were accessories before fact in the case in question. But here are the facts as we get them. Place thereon your own construction. Before the "moonshine game" became so lucrative, a recent "shiner" caught in the act was so poor indeed that the County was appealed to for sustenance for the family. Outside relief to the extent of $12 per month was given and with this little capital it is alleged, the moonshine foundry equipment was procured and a little still put to work. Soon the shekels rolled in and business got so good that an automobile was added to the equipment and the family comfort and liability.

A couple of weeks ago the regular order of $12 was procured from the County and the allegation is that the "shiner" went to his regular grocer purchased a $6 coffee grinding mill and invested the remaining $6.00 in shelled corn and sugar and when an unfeeling Sheriff and his deputies broke in on his operations the "Shiner" was using the taxpayer's coffee grinder, to grind the taxpayers corn, with which to place with taxpayers sugar and thus prepare a mash from which the moon shine would be extracted and disposed of to those taxpayers with a thirst, willing to take a chance and who had the $4.00 per quart.

Now here is the main exhibit in this case and if the Commissioners can be made particeps criminis, as the lawyers say, let them go to it, 'taint our funeral.

THE ARBUCKLE CASE

Over in San Francisco Roscoe Arbuckle is on trial on a charge of manslaughter. The newspapers the country over have devoted more space to this trial, perhaps, than any other like case in the history of newspaperdom, until there is scarcely a person who reads the daily papers who is not cognizant of the basic facts in the case.

The Progress, therefore, believes its readers have been furnished with sufficient information on the subject, and hereby announces that no more of the testimony in the case will be presented in the issues of this paper. When the case goes to the jury, our readers will be so informed, and when a decision is rendered, the news will be carried in these pages. But there will be no more discussion of the subject. We have concluded to eliminate from these columns any further testimony of the affair.

We do this out of respect and regard for the homes into which our paper enters and respect for the paper and ourselves. Those who, from morbid curiosity or any other reason desire to read further details of this case, which grow more unprintable every day, will probably have no difficulty in finding papers that are printing it.

We believe, however, that it would make for the purity of the atmosphere of the country if this case could be entirely eliminated from all papers.

ABOLISH THE SUBMARINE?

The New York Times suggests that it would do no harm to the world in general, and probably do good, if the submarine were abolished.

Certainly if that could be done, unanimously and absolutely, humanity everywhere would heave a sigh of relief. But is it possible today?

Disarmament, like every other nation process, necessarily proceeds step by step. A big step has been taken in regard to battleships. Other important steps are planned, aiming to restrict the use of battle cruisers, submarines and airplanes for distant use and therefore for purposes of aggression. All the emphasis is placed on legitimate defense. It is recognized that submarines of moderate size are especially adapted to defensive use, and it is the small powers particularly that insist on retaining them.

There is little prospect, therefore, of abolishing the submarine until, by closer international organization and better collective action, peace is so strongly assured that individual nations lose their fears.

BEER

It was inevitable that with the prospect of beer being sold rather freely in drugstores, Congress should abolish beer. The medicinal beer ruling was legal, under the Voistead law, and probably represented the only position the federal authorities could take, under the circumstances. Instead of helping the brewing interests, however, it merely showed a gap unwittingly left in the Volstead Act, and inspired Congress to fill that gap.

Lenine's removal of the Russian ban on white collars won't mean much until Russia starts importing soap.

In the matter of armament, and also of international cooperation, thank Heaven we are getting as far as possible away from normalcy.

A naval holiday is especially welcome during a prolonged industrial holiday.

All the conferring powers at Washington say they agree to the American and Chinese proposals "in spirit." In this case, however, the biblical truth is reversed and the spirit killeth but the letter giveth life.

Japan's chief trouble is temperamental. Like pre-war Germany, she feels that nobody loves her, and resents it. But it won't do a bit of good to start out, like Germany, and make everybody hate her.

There are still too many people who think patriotism consists primarily in hating other countries.

SEASONABLE FRUIT DISHES.

Canned cherries lend themselves to a variety of tasty dishes. Cherry pie is hard to equal when well made and baked.

Cherry Pie.—Take two cupfuls of stoned and stewed cherries, one cupful of water, one-half cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch mixed with three tablespoonfuls of cold water. Cook together the cherries, sugar, water and cornstarch paste. Pour into a lined pastry plate and cover with lattice strips and bake in a hot oven.

Cherry and Pear Cocktail.—Dice two canned pears, mix with one-half cupful of pitted cherries, pour one cupful of juice over all and chill. Serve in long-stemmed glasses, ice cold.

Rhubarb Sherbet.—Take two pounds of rhubarb, cut fine, add two cupfuls of water, two tablespoonfuls of ginger root, chopped, two and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Cook until soft. Add one teaspoonful of gelatin, stir until well dissolved. Strain, cool, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and freeze. This makes two quarts.

Rhubarb and Raisin Cocktail.—Boil one-half cupful of large seeded raisins in one cupful of water until plump. Cover with one-fourth of a cupful of orange juice and let stand two hours. Add one cupful of stewed, strained rhubarb and more water if desired. Mix well and serve ice cold with a slice of orange as a garnish for each cocktail.

Creamed Dates.—Boil one cupful of sugar with one-third of a cupful of water until it threads. It should take about eight minutes. Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, adding one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Prepare one-half pound of dates by removing the stones and stuffing with blanched almonds. Put these into the hot sirup, immediately adding the beaten whites. Stir very rapidly until just creamy, removing from the fire. Serve as a compote with whipped cream or as a garnish for tart baked apples, custard or a gelatin jelly.

Needs of Crop Reporting Service Outlined Before Marketing Officials

Chicago, Nov. 28.—A comprehensive program for perfecting the Governments crop reporting service which will be carried out as soon as funds are available, was outlined here by Leon M. Estabrook, of the United States Department of Agriculture, speaking before the National Association of State Markting Officials at its annual meeting. Mr. Estabrook spoke on the relation of the Government crop reports to marketing, describing th various processes involved in gathering and disseminating the reports and pointing out the uses to which they are put in aiding the production and marketing of agricultural products.

Alluding to criticisms made of the service from time to time, Mr. Esterbrook declared that officials responsible for the preparation of the Government crop reports known better than any other class of men exactly wherein the crop reporting organization and system are deficient and know vxactly in what particulars and how they can and should be improved. Crop reporting, he pointed out, had been in successful operation for more than half a century and "every conceivable defect in th system and every correctable method had been repeatedly brought to the attention of the responsible officials."

Means of Improving Service Discussed

These officials, he said have tried or seen tried every known method and every method that has been suggested for estimating crop and livestock production. Mr. Estabrook grouped the various features of the program for improving the service under nine general divsions, which he discussesd as follows:

There is a growing and insistant demand that the estimates be localized by counties. During the last three years the system has gradually extended its system to make county estimates through its State statisticians. It is hoped now to publish mans for each state at or about harvest time, indicating surplus and deficient production by counties for each of the important crops.

It is planned to issue figures showing the marketable surplus production—that part of the crop that is actually sold and leues the farm and goes into the channels of trade. Up to the present time the department has simply estimated total farm production because of lack of funds except during the war period when emergency appropriations permitted estimates of commercial production of fruit and truck crops.

Estimates will be more in detail, such as production by varieties, qualities, and grades, estimates of abandoned acreage, of loss and damage from disease and insect pests; disposition, utilization, shrinkage, and waste farm stocks and other factors that have a direct bearing on time, place, quantity or quality of production.

Enlarged Livestock reports needed

Complete, acurate and timely information with respect to liestock production is needed, perhaps more than any thing else, Mr. Estabrook said. Additional funds would allow the department greatly to enlarge its livestock reporting service and to forecast the production of beef, hogs, ambs, wool and dairy and poultry products with the same frequency and the same degree of accuracy as the staple crops of the country are now estimated.

NEXT

Honesdale, Pa., Nov. 27.—The fruit of the thornapple tree has become the quince through the effort of William H. Bullock, a former state orchardist but now a farmer at Dyerry near here.

Mr. Bullock has found that by grafting scions of quince upon the ordinary thornbush which grows wild in many of the neglected pastures of the surrounding countryside he can raise large, juicy quinces and at the same time foil the efforts of one of the worst fruit tree pests, the round headed apple tree borer.

The quince tree is eagerly sought by the borer which deposits its eggs at the base. When these hatch the larvae attack the sapwood and later the heartwood, usually killing the tree in two or three years. By the grafting process, according to Mr. Bullock, fine quinces can be grown as soon as they can be produced on the original stock and without the risk of losing trees by the borers, which do not trouble th thorn bush.

VALUE OF DEEP BREATHING

Western Peoples Have Not a Proper Comprehension of Its Immense Importance.

Singers are not the only persons in need to learn to breathe deeply; the practice is good for every one, say the neurologists, and they add that we of the western lands have paid altogether too little attention to correct respiration and still less to the good effects of deep breathing.

In the Orient they look very differently upon it and lay great stress upon its constant and regular practice. The eastern philosophers teach that the mental powers, self-control, clear vision, happiness and even morals are dependent in great measure upon this practice of deep breathing.

It includes the play of the whole respiratory apparatus—every part of the lungs, every air cell, every respiratory muscle, is to be brought into action. In modified breathing only part of the cells are filled with oxygenated air, and the muscles are only partly employed.

To breathe deeply requires that one should stand erect and inhale steadily through the nostrils. First fill the lower part of the lungs, then the middle part by pushing out the lower ribs and breast bone, and finally the higher part by elevating the chest. Hold the breath for a few seconds and exhale slowly through the mouth.

Deep breathing promotes a sort of massage of the internal organs and produces a soothing effect on the nerves.

DIDN'T YIELD TO TREATMENT

But Young Physician's Concern Over Patient's Eye Was Really Wholly Unnecessary.

From one of the larger hospitals in Kansas City comes the story (guaranteed under the foods and drugs act) of a young doctor and an equally young and well-trained nurse, who collaborated in the conscientious treatment of the left eye of a patient who had been sent to the hospital for an operation.

It is said that following the operation, the pupil of the patient's left eye failed to dilate in accordance to instructions in the book, and the young physician became somewhat concerned. As to just why the pupil was expected to grow larger at the time is not known to the layman, but the fact remains that the doctor prescribed an eye bath and instructed the attending nurse to apply it every half hour throughout the night. After the eye had been bathed, the lid was pulled down and massaged thoroughly. And so, every half hour, the nurse carried out the doctor's instructions. When daylight came a bandage was placed over the optic to protect it from the strong rays of the morning light.

At nine o'clock the young doctor entered the patient's room and asked the nurse how he was feeling.

"Well," he replied, "it feels as good as it has for a long while. You see, it has been a glass eye ever since I was five years old."—Kansas City Times.

The Castle of Lewes.

The noble castle of Lewes, in England, now acquired for the nation, has a history going back to the fierce days of the Saxon invasions. In Athelstan's day it possessed two mints and the Lewes silver coin was a recognized coin of the realm. The conqueror gave the town to William de Warren, who found a fortress ready to hand, much like that he had left behind him in Normandy.

Lewes, which has been famous for long years for bonfires and fireworks, used to persecute Quakers and others; thus in 1659 a party of Quakers were assembled for worship on the castle green, when "rude people" fell upon them with swords, guns and pikes, and assailed them with squibs. So squibbing is proved to be one of the most ancient institutions of the town.

Possibility of Saving Coal.

An ordinary passenger locomotive consumes a pound of fuel for every 52 feet it travels. Each unnecessary stop, made with a heavy freight or passenger train, represents a net loss of from 500 to 750 pounds of coal, depending on the weight of the train, the length of the stop and the grade conditions. A brake-line air leak on a train of 50 freight cars has been known to cause a loss of as much as 2,540 pounds of coal in a ten-hour period. The loss of coal each time a modern locomotive pops off for five minutes is about 75 pounds. If locomotive firemen were to save a little more than one shovelful of coal out of each ton used, the total saving would be equal to nearly one per cent of all the coal handled.—Floyd W. Parsons, in World's Work.

He Cured Her.

The absent-minded husband was prone to forget the mailing of important letters given him by his wife when he started off for the office in the morning. So she had resored to the old trick of placing a postcard addressed to herself among the envelopes. When she didn't receive the card in the late afternoon mail she could reproach him at night.

It was very embarrassing. So the absent-minded husband decided that he would have to stop it. One day he wrote a message on the back of the tale-telling postcard. It read: "No, dearest, I didn't forget to mail the letters." After that his wife abandoned the scheme.—Milwaukee Journal.

LATEST IN HATS FROM CAVE BELLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Nov. 30.—(United Press) The woman who goes into one of the harmless-looking little send-the-bill-to-father shops off Fifth Avenue for the latest thing in hats will get just what the cave-bells of 100,000 B. C. was wearing.

Exhaustive search for original costumes for the Devonshire House ball led prospective particulars back to the oldest drawings in the world—on the rocks of Altamira—where they found the ladies of the period (40,000-100,000 B. C. wearing the pedant straight feather creations that are among the autumn fashions in hats.

The costume will be seen at the ball—if the wearer is not excluded for not being in fancy dress—along with a reproduction of one found in a Danish coffin, pre-dating by centuries the Grecian and Egyptian eras in which the upper part was a woolen woven jumper, open to the waist but laced and fastened with a brooch and the lower part a skirt with a loose girdle, similar to that worn on a dressing gown.

OUR STOLEN CANAL FOUND DOWN RIVER

The Canoes belonging to Dr. Leipold and Albert Ross, which were stolen from the rierfront one night last week were located as a result of the notice in the Progress. The Ross canoe was tied up on the river bank at Surveyor by a couple of Clearfield boys who walked back to town after their ride down the river in the stolen canoe. They will hear more about their trip in a day or two.

Dr. Leipold's canoe, which he valued at $100 was seen on the riverbank about 500 yards above the mouth of Clearfield Creek on Sunday, last by a couple of East End boys, according to their story but when Dr. Leipold accompanied the boys to the spot where they alleged they had seen the canoe, it had been carried away by the high water.

The Canoe, an "Old Town" make is painted red with a gold stripe around it and Dr. Leipold will appreciate any information regarding it from downriver people.

Aquatic Plants.

Aquatic plants should not be planted in shallow ponds or lakes that freeze solid. No matter how thick the ice forms on the surface the plants will live if the water about them, under the ice, does not freeze. If ice forms about the roots of the plants they will be killed.

OLD AGE, HIS MARK!

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discourses of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows. We can detect the first traces of disease by signs just as plain.

When a woman suffers from backache, nervous prostration, bearing-down pains and these ailments peculiar to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine. What other medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles?

FIVE GREATEST CITIES IN U. S. NOT GREATEST IN STRICTEST SENSE OF WORD

Urban Census Shows That Political Lines Do Not Give Full Census Credit To Some Cities

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—What are the five most populous "urban communities" in the United States?

The Question sounds stilted, a bulletin from the National Geographic Society admits, but the term refers it is explained to something entirely different from the "five largest cities". For some purpose it is more useful to know where the greatest number of city dwellers are gathered together than to know how many live inside arbitrary political divisions. Continuing the Bulletin says:

Two "Cities" Rank Fourth

"If the term 'cities' is used loosely, the United States is in the strange position of having two cities that rank fourth and two that rank fifth in size, although these communities are of different magnitude. The mixup is due to that artificial thing, the city limit. People in establishing their homes have shown a fine disregard for these lines—except as prompted by consideration of taxation—and have built on either side and even astride them. Ther are many places where city boundary lines run directly thru blocks or along busy streets, leaving outside regions as populous or more populous than those included. Yet when 'the population of the city' is being ascertained, onl the noses inside the imaginary lines are counted.

"To clear up the difficulty and bring out the really important fact—where the greatest concentrations of city-dwelling populations are to be found—the United States census has gathered statistics not only for city political divisions, but also for 'Metropolitan districts.' These latter include the entire urban communities made up of the big cities inside their political line and also the city districts drawn closely around them though outside the arbitrary boundaries. The figures obtained for these population units strikingly alter the rank of the cities.

Boston District 4th; Boston City 7th.

"The first three places are held by New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia under both systems of enumerations. But while Boston, the political division, ranks seventh and Detroit fourth, the Boston metropolitan district goes to fourth place and Detroit metropolitan district takes the sixth place. The population figures show that within a rough 'circle' drawn from the center of Boston with a radius of between ten and fifteen miles there are in this kly settled communities 1,772,254 inhabitants.

"In a similar 'circle' drawn around Detroit in United States territory there are 1,165,153 inhabitants. If the entire population o Wayne County in which Detroit is situated were counted in the Detroit district and if the populations of the four counties grouped around Wayne County were added the population would still be less than 1,400,000 though the average radius would then be increased to 30 miles. The increase of the radius around Boston to 25 to 30 miles would bring into the district between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 inhabitants, for the eastern end of Massachusetts is one of the most thickly populated regions in the United States.

Pittsburgh District Fifth

"Like Boston, Pittsburgh suffers in a comparison of the population of the cities by the fact that the official city boundaries enclose a relative small small area while immediately outside are numerous populous regions. When the figures for the Pittsburgh metropolitan district are used instead of the figures for the political division Pittsburgh rises from nineth to fifth place among the urban communities of the United States. Its metropolitan district has a population of 1,207,504, but with in the imaginary lines of the city boundaries are less than half that number of inhabitants.

"The magnitude of the omissions of urban territory and populations from some of the cities in thickly settled portions of the country are brot out by canvass of the sizable cities and towns, left to be separately organized, which cluster just outside of the city limits. Within ten to fifteen miles of Boston are three cities with populations between 90,000 and 110,000; six cities between 40,000 and 90,000; twelve cities between 15,000 and 40,000; eihgt of between 10,000 and 15,000 and a large number of communities under 10,000 population. Pittsburgh's metropolitan district contains in addition to Pittsburgh itself 11 communities with epulations ranging from 10,000 to 50,000 and 31 with populations between 5,000 and 10,000. Within the Detroit metropolitan district not included in the Detroit city limits are three towns and villages with populations between 10,000 and 50,000 and three numbering between 5,000 and 10,000 inhabitants."

MLLE. LENGLEN'S OWN STORY OF MALLORY MATCH

French Girl Who Defaulted To Mrs. Mallory Claims Criticism Is Unwarranted.

By Henry L. Farrell

New York, Nov. 30. (United Press)—Mlle Suzanne Lenglen, the European tennis champion gives her story about her resignation in the now famous match against Mrs. Molla Mallory the American champion at Forest Hills last summer, in an interview in "Tennis and Golf" (London).

The French girl champion, who is resting near Dieppe, "bitterly regrets that she was ever prevailed upon to face the struggle of the American Championship and also that she was deceived about her own state of health." Suzanne insists that she did not care about her own defeat to Mrs. Mallory to whom she renders "sincere homage" and describes as a "perfectly loyal player of intrinsic merit." Describing her own feelings in the Champion ship match Mlle. Lenglen said:

"In the first game I knew I had presumed on my strength. Immediately my breathing was at fault and several minutes after, I began to cough. It was not before I saw that I could not win. I kept a bright contenance as long as I could, trying to do my best, attempting to smile and to pursuade myself that it was the fierce struggle which made my feeble powers give out. But soon I was overtaken by giddiness. During my fits of coughing I could see nothing; the whole court swam before my eyes."

Commenting on the interview, A. Walis Meyers, tennis expert of the "London Field," who came to the United States for the matches here, had the following comment in the "Field."

"Mlle. Lenglen accuses an unkind world of suggesting that she forgot to shake hands with Mrs. Mallory after the contest. We have never seen this suggestion in print. It is quite untrue. When Mlle Lenglen came to the umpires chair and renounced the match, Mrs. Mallory followed her and observing her condition proposed a brief respite. Mlle Lenglen intimated that her decision to retire was final—whereuponthe American champion expressed her sympathy and withdrew to the pavilion. The question of handshaking did not arise. Mlle. Lenglen remained perfectly cordial. The latter says in an interview that she was only beaten at Forest Hills by the "shadow of myself."

"We agree that Mlle Lenglen has played better in France when the occasion has been less stressful; but having seen her play both in Paris and at Wimbledon as well as in New York we should be inclined to say that her form did not differ materially inanyof these three occasions. On the other hand Mrs. Mallory was better at New York than at either Wimbledon or Paris."

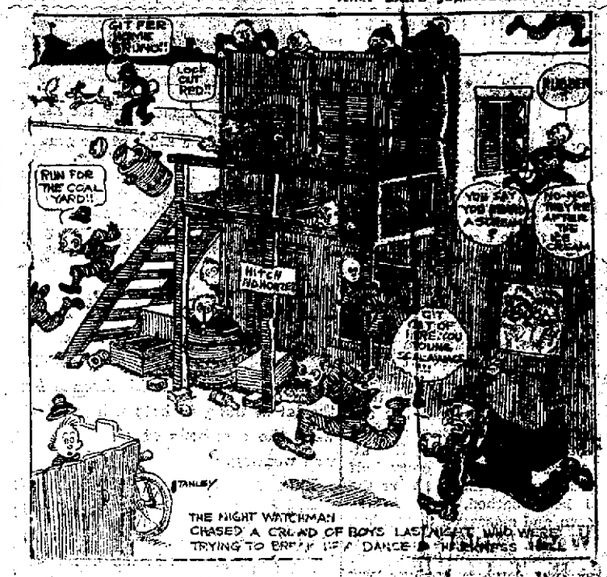
NOT DUE TO SEX ALONE

Clearfield Women Have Learned the Cause of Many Mysterious Pains and Aches

Many women have come to know that sex isn't the reason for all backaches, dizzy headaches and urinary disorders. Men have these troubles, too, and often they come from kidney weakness. To live simply, eat sparingly, take better care of one's self and to use Doan's Kidney Pills, is bound to help bad kidneys get better. There is no other remedy so well-recommended by Clearfield people. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. C. E. Reed, 205 Clearfield St., Clearfield, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble. There was a severe pain in the small of my back and I had headaches. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they drove away the pains and headaches. I cannot say too much for Doan's as I think they are perfectly wonderful."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Reed had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.



When Foote Scored on Garrick.

Garrick, the famous actor, was well known for his meanness, and one day Foote, the comedian, scored neatly. Garrick had been ridiculing a third party, when he relented and said: "Well, I suppose I ought to take the beam out of my own eye before I condemn another." "So you would," retorted Foote, "if you could but sell the timber!"

The Last Word.

The sweet young thing thought she was making a huge success. "There is only one thing I can't understand," he started to say. "Only one?" she asked, without letting him finish. "There was one. Now there are two. The second is why some girls never learn that it is only the pretty ones who can afford to be impertinent."

Letter Box Novelist's Invention.

The letter box was invented by Anthony Trollope, the novelist, who was a surveyor of the post office in England from 1841 to his retirement from the service in 1867.

Literature.

I do not wish to be understood as condemning the training that helps the student to distinguish between good and bad literature, but I do mean to say that if the reader has not that within which interprets to him the indefinable something which we call genius, it will never be revealed to him by criticisms and analytical processes. WORLD'S DEBT TO THE MOON

Orb Is One of the Most Dependable of Utilities, and the True Friend of Lovers.

As an overhead system of lighting, the moon is one of the most dependable of public utilities.

It rises and sets like the village loafer and decreases the working schedule of a watch.

If it were charged for by the kilowatt, hour, or the cubic centimeter, it would cost a lot of jack to become engaged.

The theory that the moon was made of green cheese gained some credence in the past, but has since been proved erroneous by able astronomers with highly developed olfactory centers.

The moon makes an old man wish he was twenty and a young man wish he had two sets of arms.

It softens the heart, tongues, heart and any tendency toward verbal thrift. Statements are made in the moonlight that even a police court lawyer wouldn't try to prove.

Before marriage a man believes that a dog barks at the moon as a tribute to the splendor of the orb at night. After marriage he learns the real motive.

A combination of limpid eyes, lambent beams and placid lake will make even a deacon swallow his Adam's apple 40 times in succession and feel capable of playing an oboe.

It makes them all edible.

Lincoln got his education by the light of the fireplace.

Countless savants have gained their knowledge slaving away with the midnight oil.

Many have burrowed into great tomes by the sputtering flame of the gas jet.

But the real wise birds—the guys who are hep and jerry—learned most of their lessons in the moonlight!—Judge.

PLEASURES OF YOUNG CHINA

Children Have Many Amusements Which Are Unknown to Youngsters of Other Countries.

The children of the Chinese village led a sheltered, happy existence with servants and young relatives to amuse them indoors or without, as the weather permitted, writes M. T. F., in Asia Magazine. They were liberally supplied by their indulgent grandmother with pocket money in the form of handfuls of coppers, instead of the strings of cash that sufficed an earlier generation. From passing vendors they bought bows and arrows of brightly painted bamboo, whistling birds and theatrical figures of colored earthenware, inflated rubber toys and an endless variety of rice flour cakes, sesame seed confections, peanut taffy and millet candy. On festal days the choice was wider than ever with fluffy bunches of sugar wool (fine spun sirup) and brittle candy toys blown from molten taffy with all the glass blower's art, in the form of lanterns, birds and fish mounted on slender sticks. At early seasons there were huge fish made of bamboo frames, paper covered and realistically painted, which swam in a breeze with lazy grace, or kites similarly fashioned to represent birds and dragons which winged upward in fascinating flight.

Great Congo Rubber Forests.

The great rubber forest of M'Bonga, in the Congo country, thousands of square miles in extent, is really composed of two forests joined by an isthmus of wood. In the forest lies the Belgian fort of M'Bassa. The fort is not used today as a fort (or was not when H. De Vere Stacpoole wrote his book, "The Pools of Silence," in 1910) only as a collecting place for rubber. Mr. Stacpoole says: "In the early days it was a very necessary entrenchment for the Belgians, as a tribe almost as warlike as the Zappo Zap terrorized the districts; but the people of this tribe have long been brought under the blue flag and the white star. They are now 'soldiers,' and their savagery has, like a keen tool, been turned to good advantage by the government."

Waiting for Precedent.

In the memoirs of M. Saint-Saens, the famous French composer, there is a story of his days at the Madeleine when he was organist.

The composer's taste inclined toward severe music of the highest order. One of the clergy pointed out to him that the congregations at the Madeleine were composed largely of wealthy people who attended frequently the Opera Comique and had their musical tastes formed by what they heard there.

"M. l'Abbe," replied Saint-Saens, "when I hear from the pulpit the language of the Opera Comique I will play music appropriate to it, and not before."

Pawnbroker's Sign.

The Emperor Augustus Caesar, 31 B. C., instituted a fund for lending to needy persons on pledge. The institutions, called "Monti di Pieta," arose at Perugia, in Italy, about 1462 A. D. The first pawnbrokers in England were Italian Lombards, and the three balls still used as their insignia are said to have been derived from the arms of the Medici family, adopted, according to legend, in memory of Averardo de Medici, a commander under Charlemagne, who slew the giant, Mugello, whose club he bore as a trophy. This club or mace had at its head three iron balls, which the family of Medici adopted as their device.

Valuable Life-Saving Device.

A useful invention is the line-carrying buoy. Its inventor sought to devise some means of getting a line from ship to shore, and the line-carrying buoy was the result. When released from the ship, if the wind is in the right direction, it blows steadily toward the shore, the line unwinding behind it as it goes, until finally the buoy is dragged out of the surf with the line intact. In addition to its use in this manner, it is available for all the regular purposes of the ordinary buoy.

Oldest Dwelling in England.

The oldest dwelling in England is not a castle, but a public house, the "Fighting Cocks" at St. Albans, which is said to have been built as a boathouse to the monastery founded at St. Albans by King Offa, about 795, and to have become an inn in 1250. It is octagonal in shape and its ceilings are less than six feet high.

"Log Rolling."

Log rolling meant originally the rolling of logs, after trees had been cut down, into a stream or into heaps. It was customary for the men of a district to assemble together for this purpose, and so log rolling afterward came to mean, in American politics, that unusual old which persons desiring different ends give to each other in order to get their schemes carried through. It thus means reciprocal jobbing.

Inver.

Inver is a prefix in the Gaelic language, and it means a confluence of rivers, the place where two rivers come together. The prefix is used in Scotland, particularly in the north, as an element of many names, as in the name Inverness. The River Ness here joins the arm of the sea known as Moray Firth. Inverness is the confluence or junction of the River Ness.

The People's Taste.

Who are by way of eminence the poets of all mankind? Surely Homer and Shakespeare. Now Homer formed his taste as he wandered from door to door, a vagrant minstrel paying for hospitality by song; and Shakespeare wrote for an audience composed in great measure of the common people. —George Bancroft.

Power Tests Character.

Nothing discloses real character like the use of power. It is easy for the weak to be gentle. Most people can bear adversity. But if you wish to know what a man really is, give him power. This is the supreme test. It is the glory of Lincoln that, having almost absolute power, the power abused it never on the side of mercy. He spoke not to humble, but to uplift. But to criticise. He was the embodiment of the universal, and of course, the hope and the nobility of the nation.—Robert Green Ingersoll.
